

It must be stressed that the Friedrich Ebert Stiftung does not offer any monetary compensation for travel expenses, does not accept any costs incurred by the applicant while in Ghana, and does not pay any honorarium during the internship period. All expenses including travel, room and board remain the responsibility of the applicant. FES does not accept claims or responsibility for any accidents of and damages or losses to the intern as they may occur during the internship.

We encourage all successful applicants to inform themselves on the organizational, financial and medical requirements for travelling to Ghana as well as visa applications.

Successful applicants are expected to:

- give written prove of valid medical insurance, including treatment whilst in Ghana and costs for medical emergency evacuation.
- give written prove of valid third party damage insurance (Reisehaftpflichtversicherung).
- observe Ghanas immigration and labour laws.

I accept these conditions as basis of my internship with FES-Ghana.
